Forklift Certification Program OSHA's standard 29 CFR 1910.178 requires employers to establish and implement a forklift training and certification program. Employers must ensure that all designated forklift operators are trained and certified prior to operating any powered industrial truck in the workplace. Additionally, employers are required to review each operator's performance and provide refresher training at least every three years.

Failure to provide adequate training and certification as required by OSHA regulations can result in fines up to $7,000/employee.

This class will provide each employee with the written certification and will prepare them for the forklift operating check-off which must be done on their own forklift in front of their supervisors.
